Oxfam through the recession

SCOTS are continuing to respond more generously to appeals by Oxfam than people in any other part of the country, according to the charity's Scottish director

Presenting his report on the ast financial year, Dr Bill McGuire said that the support from people in Scotland has helped Oxfam weather the storm of the present economic treession.

However, Oxfam, who cele-orate their 40th birthday in October, have not been able to ompletely avoid the economic problems affecting the ountry

AFTER 17 years they were back — the greatest rock and roll band in the world.

Three hours after flying into Aberdeen the Rolling Stones took the stage at the Capitol theatre and were welcomed by a wall-to-wall audience.

From the opening strains of "Under My Thumb" the Stones held their audience in the palms of their hands.

The palms of their hands to town shortly after $p$ m. and headed straight for the Capitol.

Before 7 pm. the lucky fans with tickets for the concert — which opened the Stones 1982 European Tour — had begun queuing for their seats.

The queue at either side of the front doors to the theatre stretched almost half the length of the city's Union Street.

And the stones lead singer; mick Jager, ventured out of the Capitol's back door and was confronted by a mob of fans.

Those same fans took their seats to cheer every Stones number to the echo.
